Senator Judd Gregg Reacts to House Leadership Proposal to Include Non-Emergency Spending in War-Time Supplemental

“Supplemental bills have become an all-too-convenient way to shield non-emergency spending from the authorization and appropriations process. A supplemental for war-time funding should be just that – money to support our troops fighting abroad. Instead, House Democrats today announced their plan to insert billions of dollars worth of domestic non-emergency spending that is, in many cases, just plain pork. War-time funding should be not used as a gravy train for projects that would otherwise be subject to the proper channels of review.”
